How about a real student ISTEP test about real life?

1.) Student A goes through serving line 4 and purchases Sabatasso pizza, milk, and chips for lunch. Student B goes through the a la carte line and purchases a chicken sandwich, hot pretzel, and juice for lunch. The sum of the two students' lunches is always:

- a) positive
- b) the square root of the price for nachos
- c) irrational
- d) equal, if and only if student A pays $.25 for each additional napkin he takes

2.) Student A is a Senior. Student A still rides the bus to school. Therefore, it can be assumed that student A:

- a) is ridiculed by Freshmen
- b) is mocked by Sophomores
- c) gets no respect from Juniors
- d) cannot walk down C-hall alone
- e) all of the above

3.) A Freshman and a Senior both arrive at school at 7:29 a.m. Using the Pythagorean Theorem estimate which student will arrive to class on time.

- a) Neither
- b) Both
- c) The Senior. The Freshman never gets his locker open.
- d) The Freshman. The Senior decides to skip first hour and go out to breakfast.

4.) Film Strips: 1970's:

- a) Mr. Apple: Walkie Talkie
- b) Mr. Newell: Special Announcement
- c) Physics: Impossible
- d) Driving to School: Death Wish

5.) Student A is given a hall pass. He/She will eventually return to class.

- a) Yes
- b) No
- c) Answer cannot be determined from the information given.

6.) Student A leaves S-101 heading for C-hall at the speed of 40 steps a minute. Student B leaves E-110 30 seconds later also heading for C-hall at the rate of 45 steps per minute. At what point will the two students meet.

- a) Somewhere in V-hall
- b) Somewhere over the rainbow
- c) Never, are you nuts? It's passing period. Student B never gets out of Lower E.

LCTG'S "CANDIDE":

Because of the strategic sets, the cafeteria became the ideal place to perform this once in a lifetime show with a great cast.

IN THE CAFETERIA?

Which transformations did LC's cafeteria undergo last summer? (There can be more than one answer.) A. an auditorium B. a dressing room C. a dance floor D. a choir room E. a gathering place F. a costume rack G. a prop table

The correct answer is... all of the above, and if you saw LCTG's summer theatre production of "Candide," you could see that pulling off this once on-Broadway drama-comedy-musical, written by Leonard Bernstein, in the cafeteria gave the mood and performance of this play a sense of accomplishment.

All the characters from Cunegonda (Leslie Fane, 12) to the bellydancers (Janell Cox, 12; Jackie Trippeer, 12; Danise Ellenwood, 12; Tania Vujasic, 11; Michelle Gilbert, 11; Dana Jones, 11) to the very outraged gorilla (Kristen Vadas, 11) to one of the grazing sheep (Heather Hogan, 12) to the Mexican Dons (Jason Utesch, 11; Kevin Carroll, 11; Kyle Ross, 11) and all the other victims and victimizers found out that life is not all that good at all times.

At least once in this very unusual yet spiritual musical, everyone came back to life again. Unusual? Of course, because not all shows have been based on a Voltare novel.

The cast, crew and pit had to adjust to the very personal atmosphere of performing right in front of the audience. The company learned to slap on a smile and just go for it.

Looking back over the summer, Trippeer remembered, "It is so weird to think about that I danced and sang right where I am eating lunch this year." by Heather

INDIANS VS DEVILS:

WHO BURNED WHOM?

Homecoming weekend started out with an outstanding (42-0) victory over the Lowell Red Devils. The Indians took control from the start of the game and never let up. Jason Mangold, 12, and Dave Wendlinger, 11, each had a pair of touchdowns in the first half. Mangold's touchdowns each came on 48 -yard runs. Wendlinger came up with a 17 -yard run and a 1 yard run, putting the Indians up (35-0) to end the first half. Junior quarterback Ben Brown started off the second half with a 14 -yard touchdown pass to Kyle Woods.

The Indians' final touchdown completed the third quarter when Kris Gullickson ran in six yards to make the score (42-0). That score kept throughout the remainder of the game.

Senior Matt Gunty commented, "It was a great feeling for such a high scored game. The victory helped set the atmosphere for an excellent Homecoming weekend."

STAG:

Homecoming provided a night of hanging out and dancing for both couples and staggers.

THE THING TO DO?

Oh yes, the famous Homecoming dance. This is when everybody from frosh to seniors can enjoy a night of fun and dancing. For freshmen, it's their first high school dance. Can all you upperclassmen remember the excitement which you felt the night of your first Homecoming? So you remember thinking how wonderful it would be to dance the night away with your date? For sophomores, well, they probably felt cool because they were no longer scared little freshmen. Karra Dobosz(10) stated, "It was fun because my date and I just went as friends with a bunch of other couples."

Anyway, most juniors were all into Homecoming because they could stay out late and drive themselves to the dance. But, of course, there were some juniors who viewed the night as just another school dance in the school cafeteria. Paul Ryan(10) said, "I really didn't feel that Homecoming was a big deal this year. I just went because it was something to do."

Lots of seniors went stag so that they could enjoy the company of the entire Senior Class, instead of limiting themselves to one dance partner. Jodie Scherwood(12) stated, "It was our last Homecoming and the senior girls wanted to spend it together without the hassle of dates."

STUDENTS:

Students did more than just go to class and listen to lectures during the school day. Instead, some would wash out coffee mugs or water plants.

WHAT DO THEY REALLY DO?

What exactly goes on behind the closed doors of Lake Central? A lot more happens besides going to class, listening to lectures, and eating the yummy cafeteria food. Believe it or not, students were found doing things besides learning. Students could often be found running errands for teachers or delivering messages to the office. Some teachers even allowed some time for their students to just kind of sit around the classroom and enjoy the company of their fellow students. Vicki Nunez, 12, stated, "I think it's neat when teachers allow for their students to take a day off and just have a free day."

What else could a student who is sick of reading their history book, chemistry book, literature book or any other type of book ask for but a chance to leave the classroom for the opportunity to walk freely down the hallway; just strolling past all the classrooms, taking the longer route in hopes of grabbing the attention of a friend.

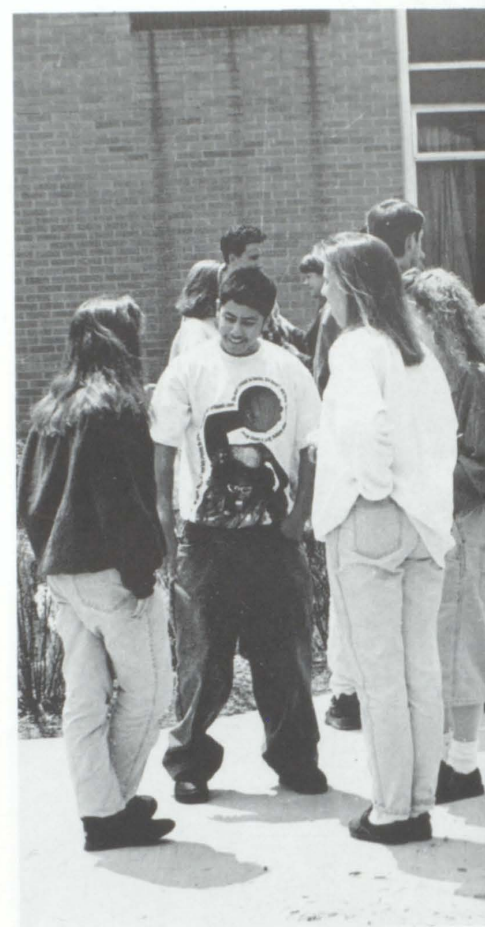

Being able to take 5 and roam the halls on one's way to the intended destination is a pleasant break from learning. It feels kind of nice to be given the freedom to walk down the empty hallways of LC, occasionally running into another free soul. AHHH, the power of a hall pass. by Angie

ALTERNATIVE MUSIC:

May it be Seven Seconds, The Cure, Billy Ray Cyrus, or the Dead, it's all music that played a significant role in students' lives. Rock N' Roll!!

WHAT ARE YOU LISTENING TO?

Have you ever thought that you saw one of the band members from Pearl Jam, Boyz II Men, or the Grateful Dead walking down the LC hallways? Well, put your autograph books away because these are only LC students. Looking around the school, one would think that the school was holding the awards show for MTV. Everyone's clothing and style seemed to be inspired by a different kind of music.

One new popular style at LC is "grunge." Bands like Pearl Jam, Nirvana, and Alice in Chains inspired this fad. Some LC students wore their father's old, dirty, work clothes to cooperate with this work style.

The group Boyz II Men also inspired a style. Students could be seen wearing jean shorts with a button-down dress shirt. And we all know that the Deadhead style will never die. by Michelle B.

MADWOMAN:

No, that madwoman was found living in LC's very own auditorium this year during the annual fall show.

LIVING IN CHAILLOT?

What do you get when you take a talented group of young actors, add the help of the directors and stage crew, and mix them up with a crazy script? Corn beef hash? No, a splendid comedy known as "The Madwoman of Chaillot."

This Chaillot, France, based play let Janell Cox, 12, portray the madwoman of Chaillot, Aurelia. Danise Ellenwood, 12, Kristen Vadas, 11, and Leslie Fane, 12, portrayed the other three loony women: Gabrielle, Constance and Josephine. Little did they or the audience know that by the end of a spring day in the 1940's the entire town would plot against the President (Jon Dulong, 12), the Broker (Michael Chapter, 12), the Barron (Alex Jovanovich, 12) and the Prospector (Jason Utesch, 11). Their tactics led to drilling the small town out of its oil and its good spirits.

Kyle Ross, 11, (the Rag Picker); Jackie Trippeer, 12, (Irma); Ryan Matasovsky, 11, (Pierre) as well as the rest of the cast helped the madwoman of Chaillot find the true meaning of love, heartache, deceit, greed, and most importantly the well being of man. by Heather

SNOWBALLS:

As soon as the snow was on the ground, students knew that the time had come.

WHO'S HITTING WHOM?

The event was easily predicted. As soon as the snow started to fall and actually stick to the ground, students prepared for the after-school-in-the-parking-lot snowball fight. Students figured out their battle plans in order to attack the "enemy" and conquer the huge snow mountains which had formed in the parking lot. The fight itself could be compared to the Trojan War. The Trojans on one hill and across the parking lot and turning lane stood the Romans. Snow walls were made while snow bombs found the hands of the awaiting warriors. Snowballs flew through the air, most with no particular destination, hitting even the helpless civilians who wanted nothing but to get to their cars without being hit in the back of the head with a cold snowball. They could just feel the snow in the collar of their coats. Jessica Mason, 12, stated, "I was dodging the snowballs as I was heading for my car. I almost got hit in the head with one,"

The "snow war" ended in fun with no casualties or injuries. Neither side won, but both sides went home cold and wet.

DANCING:

Besides hanging out at the usual fast food restaurant after the B-Ball games, students got hyped for the post-game celebrations: dances.

A NEW ALTERNATIVE?

Various clubs caught on to the idea that, yes, LC students like to dance. An innovative and new idea? No. Teenagers for generations have been thought of as the forefathers of modern dance, which led to the ever-popular tradition-- having dances after the home basketball games.

The atmosphere was not anything like Jubilations or Off the Alley, for it catered to a special group of people: LC students.

Four words to describe the four dances: money makers, money makers. The benefit dance for junior Nicole Bickham, sponsored by Mr. Bagaski's fourth hour class, started the craze of dancing, at where else, but in the cafeteria at school. The turnout was overwhelming.

After that, the cheerleaders realized that there really was nothing to do after the basketball games, for as Carli Stephan, 12, said, "Going to Taco Bell and McDonald's can get very boring. So, to take a break from the norm, the cheerleaders decided to sponsor a dance. It really did prove to be something different and most of all fun."

One week later the festivities got on their way for the Girls' and Boys' Basketball Homecoming, sponsored by Dollars for Scholars. Equipped with photographers and ready-to-play disco songs, the Basketball Homecoming proved to be the most attended.

Then, in honor of the last home B-Ball game, the Freshman Class celebrated with yet another well-attended dance. by Heather

AUTUMN:

Students and teachers alike joined in on the fun of fall by participating in the Blood Drive, the Food Drive and, of course, Halloween.

WHAT'S CHANGING?

The weather became a bit cooler, the leaves started to change color and hit the ground. It seemed as if the spirit of giving started to take effect. The Blood Drive was announced, the Thanksgiving Food Drive had begun (which inspired many to collect food in order to get those free doughnuts), and Halloween was just around the corner.

The Food Drive, sponsored by the Interact Club with the assistance of the student body collected over 34,000 cans for the needy around the area. Many students even took time away from their own family gatherings on Thanksgiving Day to help feed the homeless at the Knights of Columbus in Hammond.

The Blood Drive was also a great success which was sponsored by the MPC. The Red Cross took on the responsibility of taking the blood of LC students and trying to keep them from fainting. Kim Lutes, 12, "I'm glad I donated. I was told I had fast veins, so it only took about five minutes."

Halloween rolled by and offered much entertainment for both participants and on-lookers. Many joined in on the fun of Halloween by dressing up, decorating for the occasion, and attending parties.

Students were given the opportunity to give to others what they already have and also took advantage of still being able to act like a kid through the traditions of Halloween.

SLIPPIN' AND SLIDIN':

The annual turnabout dance celebrated a new year and also winter which left the students out in the cold with an unwanted date: snow.

THIS IS WINTER FORMAL?

Freezing temperatures, icy roads, and a snow blizzard. What do all of these natural occurrences have in common with formal dresses and tuxedos? Nothing to the ordinary person on the street, but to LC the snowstorms, fishtailing cars, and cold air made this year's Winter Formal a very unpredictable night.

It was inevitable that this year's annual turnabout dance would happen "With or Without You," for U2 knew that two years ago it happened "With You," and last year it happened "Without You." The entire attitude of many of the Formal-goers was "I will make it to the dance, and not any fall of snow will stop me."

At the dance many took pictures of their friends, but what is more important they took pictures of themselves. After waiting in line for roughly 30 minutes for their Winter Formal date picture to be taken, many students felt that they missed out on some good dancing.

But it all seemed worthwhile when the pictures were handed out three weeks later.

As the night came to a close, and after all the aspiring dancers busted a move and danced before a circle of their peers, many students stood around with no where else to go. Cancelled reservations and terrified snow drivers made the evening very spontaneous. According to Mike Oster, 11, "We had to come home earlier because the roads were slippery. We went out to eat at Glenwood Oaks. Our plans changed because we were supposed to go with our friends but we split apart."

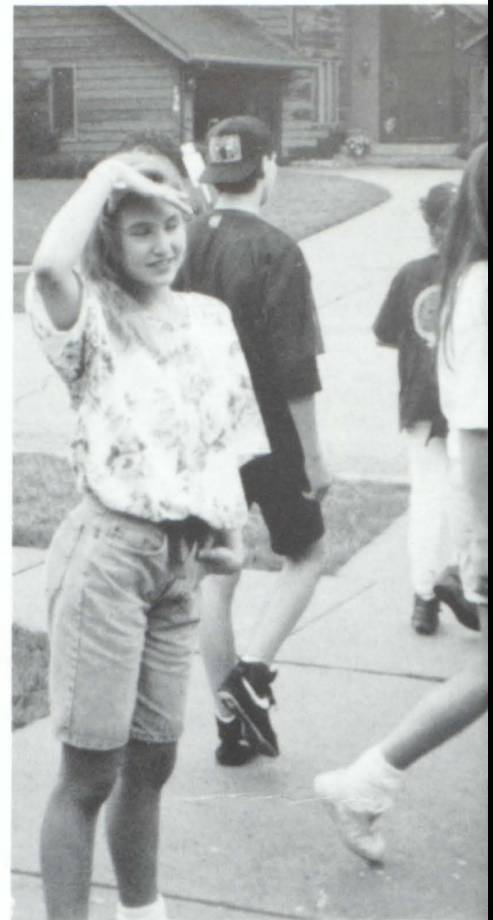

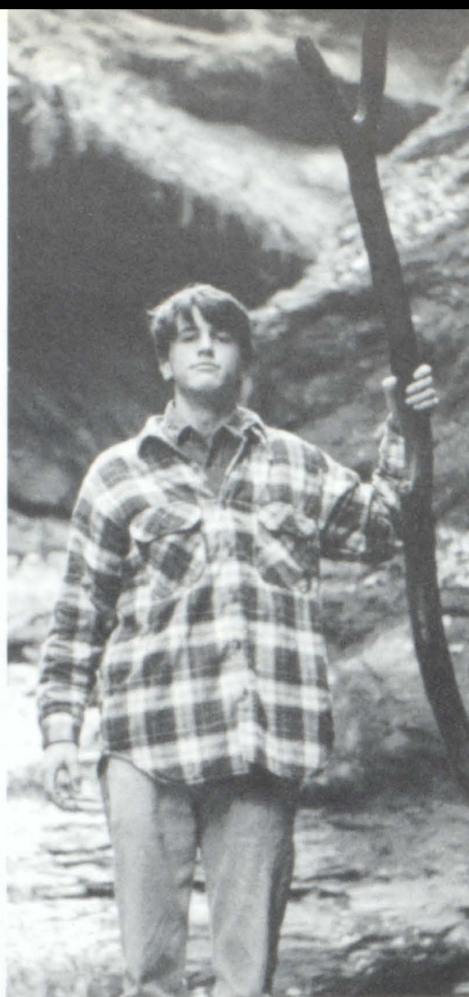

Still there were those who did venture to their destinations whether it was in Chicago, Glenwood, or good ol' Indiana. No one or thing could keep LC students' spirits down on Jan. 9, for this first "big bash" of the new year, not only celebrated good times, but also made it a slip-slatin', get-down groovin', snow-blowin' event very cool. by Heather Hogan

UNDERCLASSMEN BLUES:

By the end of the year everyone tried to enjoy the sun and basically the entire atmosphere surrounding the idea that the year was finally over.

A RESULT OF SPRING FEVER?

Spring fever. Dance fever. Night fever. Jungle fever. In the heat of things, LC snowstormed into one of the hottest spring seasons. Breaking temperatures and records, most enjoyed the last weeks of the school year in shorts and t-shirts.

Ever since the snow blizzards hit in March, students fake-baked to get a head start on the sun's darkening affects, especially for Prom. Since the weather was not permitting those who wanted a nice tan to match their dresses for the special night, tanning salons provided this service for many prom-goers. Bad ozone layer or not, ultraviolet rays shined on and on and on, pleasing everyone, well, almost everyone. For those who were known for glowing in the dark, the extra sunblock came in handy. Even during lunch hours, students just had to catch the rays and use the light towards their advantage. Even though the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors had the "Underclassmen Blues," nothing but clear skies were in their minds of the day when, yes, they to will graduate.

SENIOR BANQUET:

Well, it should be fun. Seniors gathered one last time to do what they do best: eat, dance, and socialize

YOU CALL THIS FUN?

How should this night be described? Well, The food? Edible. The music? I gave it a 84 because it had a good beat and was easy to dance to. The dance floor? Packed. The feeling? Energetic. The atmosphere? Happy. The point? To have the opportunity to attend a school function without the aggravation of juniors, sophomores, and freshmen. The Senior class was united for the last time before everybody paved their own path towards the future.

As soon as the doors opened, the flicker of camera flashes were spotted throughout the hall. Friends gathered together in both groups of big and small to capture memories of high school. After dinner, the Senior Awards were announced. Students laughed and clapped as the winners claimed their prizes(as if we all didn't know who was going to win each award). thing, the DJ jammed out some tunes which filled the dance floor with eager seniors.

As the night progressed, the dance floor started to empty as everybody gathered up their friends so that they could continue the festivities of the night elsewhere. The beach was the supposed "hot spot", but of course students were directed away from that destination. Many hit The Castle or 'Round the Clock for some real food and conversation.

No matter what the seniors did after the dance, they all left with a feeling of accomplishment and maybe even a feeling of sadness, and of course everybody left with a mug reading, "Lake Central Senior Banquet 1993." by Angie

WISHES AND DREAMS:

LCTG's spring musical, "Into the Woods", enchanted all with the creative plot of having spells, dreams, and wishes coming true, well, almost.

DO THEY REALLY COME TRUE IN THE WOODS?

For years, students have always dreamed about doing a show that combined singing, a little bit of dancing, great acting, and of course fairy tale characters. Rough rehearsals, essential blocking sessions, all-day "teching", and tiring vocal and musical performances all added to this make believe show, but made "Into the Woods" a glittering reality of life.

"Into the Woods" started off like the childhood story books; Cinderella (Ginny Stallard, 10) wants to attend the Prince's (Jeff Beard, 9) Ball, but is purposely stopped by her cruel Step-mother (Jackie Trippeer, 12) and evil Step-sisters (Lisa Pacholski, 12 and Eilleen Miller, 12) who live with her father (Josh Yager, 12), but finds security at her Mother's (Amy Waechter, 12) grave. Jack (Kyle Ross, 11) needs to sell his cow, Milky White, because he and his mother (Kristan Vadas, 11) need money to buy food. Little Red Riding Hood (Dana Jones, 11) awaits to visit her Grandmother (Michelle Gilbert, 11) while the Baker (Jon Dulong, 12) and his wife (Janell Cox, 12) go on a journey to get the things that the Witch (Leslie Fane, 12) says they need in order to lift the baron spell on the Baker.

Keeping in line with the whole fairy tale atmosphere, in the woods the audience found the Mysterious Man (Matt Sikora, 11) lurking around the forest and the Wolf (Jason Utesch, 11) eating little girls and grandmothers. "Into the Woods" would not have been complete without the beautiful woman, Rapunzel (Danise Ellenwood, 12), trapped from her beloved Prince (Michael Chapter, 12) or the villian of the entire show: the Giant (Heather Hogan, 12). Even Snow White (Heather Graham, 11) arrived to make this dream come true.

WONDERFUL TONIGHT:

Students devoted a lot of time preparing for this extravaganza. Make-up, gel, and layers of rented clothes made everyone feel "Prommy."

DO I REALLY LOOK THAT GOOD?

Some enchanted evening-- sha-right!! No, really, the 1993 Prom was in effect May 7. Throughout St. Michael's Serbian Center located in Lansing, Illinois, prom-goers chanted to their dates they look "Wonderful Tonight."

Though the guys stage dived while the girls looked on, everything seemed to be the results of a lot of hard work done by the hairdressers, tuxedo retailers, and the Junior Class. Prom went so well that almost everyone carried the night into Saturday morning, then Sunday, and even Monday. Turkey Run, Great America, and Pro-baseball games once again made the tradition of Prom live on.

One senior contemplated, "I wonder what students at Turkey Run and Gurnee do the days after their Prom. Do they hang out in Dyer, Schererville, and St. John?" Well, maybe not, but at least LC students were able to enjoy Prom weekend on their home turf. And what about the attire at Prom? LC definitely forecasted what the future of Prom will be in the 21st Century. Red Vans, handcuffs, and dog collars tried for a radical statement at Prom, but still supported the idea that everyone can look "Wonderful Tonight."

UNIQUE TALENTS:

Believe it or not, there is a lot of talent at LC. Now one might find them a bit different, but students still wish to share their quirky, yet cool abilities.

WHAT'S YOUR TRADEMARK TALENT?

Can you lick your eye with your tongue, or twist your head around backwards and sing "Ol McDonald" at the same time? I highly doubt it! But, if you could, you would be one talented LC student. There are other kinds of talents floating through the halls of LC you know.

Some students are known for specific talents which they perform with much pride and dignity. Take Brad Caughron for instance; this sophomore can balance his gum in the air. Cool huh? Then there's Arron Vela who can make his tongue touch his chin. I know you have all tried to do that before.

O.K, enough of that. What else, Tim Harper can make his shoulder blades touch making him look like an angel.

*Anyway, I'm sure all of you have a hidden talent either it be putting both legs behind your head, or flying a aircraft, whatever it is, I'm sure it's special. by Angie

Wow! Steve Barick,10, knows how to handle a skateboard. Can you skate like him?

Showing off her hacky-sack talents, Angel Martin,11, passes the ball to an awaiting friend.

The Queen of Jacks wins again! Jen Sauzer,12, constantly proves her talent during lunch hours.

Ouch! That must hurt to sit like that. Athena Kostidis, 12, obviously finds it comfortable.

Can you make your big toe move without moving the rest? Jen Arcella, 11, sure can.

Melissa Martin, Kim Long, and Jeannette Kindernay display their guatemalan headbands at the Feast. Is this a dying fad? You decide.

TRENDS:

At every high school, things come and go. Change is nothing out of the ordinary. Especially at LC, nothing is surprising.

What's in and what's out?

Let's see, what new and groovy(yeah right) styles popped out this year? Well, guatemalan patterns covered much of the student body, as did starter jackets, body suits, different colored jeans, and beaded things. Amvets also became the place to shop. Many students journeyed from one resale shop to another looking for new fashions to strut around school. Everything from jeans to shirts to shoes to sweaters to dresses were purchased. Often students bragged about how cheap they bought their clothes. "I only paid 45 cents for these jeans at Amvets." proved a perfect example of one of those conversations.

Why do we have all these different styles of dress anyway? Most of it is because of the magazines which promote different and new fashions. Just pick up a magazine and read about the "grunge" look(I hate that word). Another little trend which had formed but died out after long(because it was stupid) was the gang thing. Fact or rumor, there was some definite tension in the hallways. Did the "Peace between Races" banner rid LC of any racial tension? You decide.

What about music? Many students tuned into Q101 "The new rock alternative" (what exactly is the definition of alternative?) for their listening pleasure. Others listened to The Blaze or WCKG in order to please their eardrums (just listen to what you like). Almost forgot the country music kick which dosy-dosed into the lives of many die-hard country music fans. The small percentage of students who enjoyed Billy Ray Cyrus and all the others were often criticized for their music preference(listen to what you like). Now that Tipper Gore has gained some status in the wonderful world of government(scary thought isn't it) nobody may be able to listen to anything considering music is so corrupting.

The point is that trends come and go. No styles ever stay the same. Things are changing. And the more they change, the more they stay the same. Is there ever really anything new? by Angie

C Cabinets have class

As we took the time to look at the class cabinets, we asked ourselves a puzzling question, what do the class cabinets really accomplish throughout the year? We talked to a few students and asked that exact question. Sophomore Missy Wilmot stated, "We decorated for Red Ribbon Week."

Chris Anderson, a member of Freshman Class Cabinet said, "We organized some of the dances after basketball games."

Another activity which the cabinets participated in was float building. Float building took much time and effort on the part of the students. Actually what the float building consisted of was a bunch of teenagers all gathered at somebody's house, getting into paint fights and playing football.

Skip Palka, 11, stated, "In the Junior Class all the guys sleep and the girls do all the work."

The Sophomore Class proved that they took the float building quite seriously by winning the contest during the Homecoming Parade.

Another task which the class cabinets fulfilled was the selling of candy. They attempted to sell suckers to their fellow students, but found it a bit difficult to sell the sweets. Missy stated, "I hated selling candy, nobody wanted to buy any."

Class Cabinets demonstrated much school spirit by being involved. Everyone involved experienced the feeling of being a part of an active group. by Charlyn and Nick

peaking in tongues

Students with an interest in foreign language found it beneficial to be a part of one of the three foreign language clubs. The students who joined the clubs found that they got support from other students, learned more about other countries and their cultures. One club member stated, "Being a part of the German club allows me to learn more about the German people, culture, and of course the language. The people who are really involved get to learn about the French and Spanish culture also."

Students found it puzzling at times to fully understand their countries language. So with great interest they came to the conclusion that by joining a foreign language club they got support from other students and a better understanding of either French, German, or Spanish. by Amy

Keyed in together

What puzzling clubs we have at LC; why would anyone want to be locked in the school over night anyway? According to Sadd, Interact, and Peer Helpers, the lock-in was a wonderful experience and a great success. All the tickets for the lock-in were sold which made for a big turnout.

Students brought all their overnight supplies such as: sleeping bags, pillows, teddy bears, and snacks. Students participated in various talk groups which discussed teen drug use, depression, and problems. Mandy Van Scoyk, 9, stated, "We had a blast. We talked in small groups about different things and after all that, there was a DJ and everybody danced most of the night."

Another accomplishment of the help groups was the food drive. The goal of 34,000 cans was achieved with the help of the student body. All participating classes strived to beat the usual winners such as: Mrs. Miller, Mr. Lewis, and the notorious Mr. Clark and company.

The clubs worked hard to make both the food drive and the lock-in successful, but their biggest accomplishment was touching the lives of others. By Nick and Charlyn

Instead of sleeping on the floor, this student found himself a nice table to call his bed for the night.

Speech, debate, and spellbowl are all clubs which require dedication and preparation in order to succeed in competition. This year these clubs have done exactly that and have become the most successful ever in the history at Lake Central.

Speech and debate had qualifiers for state and nationals this year which placed them highest among their years at Lake Central. "I've been in speech and debate for three years, we've researched a lot, and I can't say it wasn't worth it," stated Joe Plata, 12. Although the team did not meet on a regular basis, the members were required to research plenty of information to secure their winnings.

In spellbowl's second year at Lake Central, the team went from no placement in the 1991 competition to third place in the 5A class for 1992. They met once a week to practice spelling words and learn to notice from where they were originally derived. Toni Zona, 12, explained, "I was in spellbowl this year and last. I think this year we really tried harder to make the team a winning one."

These teams did exceptionally well considering they have not had much experience in their fields. With the improvement from previous years these teams will surely do even better in the future. By Jen Rash

achieving with the best

There are many average or maybe even exceptional students at Lake Central. Then in fact, there are outstanding students. A good portion of these students can be defined as the Academic Letterwinners. Upon receiving a grade point average (g.p.a.) of 3.9, a student is automatically made a member of the Academic Letterwinners. After the first semester of having this g.p.a., one receives his numerals, after the third semester, one receives his letter, after the fifth semester, one receives a pin worn on his graduation cap. Finally, after the seventh semester of having a constant 3.9, one is inducted into the hall of fame. One also receives a certificate for each semester of being an academic letterwinner. All of these awards are given out at the end of the year at their awards banquet.

Being an academic letterwinner means much hard work and many long hours of dedication and studying. However, along with these long hours may be outside activities. Jobs, after-school activities, or the involvement in other clubs, for instance, can interfere with school work. For example, choir, band, theatre, and sports all take away from homework time because of after-school rehearsals, practices, and meets. This can pose a problem for a letterwinner because, if one's g.p.a. should happen to drop, that student is kicked out of the club. If, however, one can reach a 3.9 again, he is again a member.

One of the letterwinners' activities is selling candy to raise money. The money is put into a fund for the club, and at the end of the year, much of it is used toward the awards banquet: some to cater their banquet, some to buy awards, and some is used for the hall of fame plaques.

The involvement in activities in high school is a fun, rewarding, exciting, and educational experience for everyone. It is very important to be active and to get involved with school so one can realize the potential that he actually has. After all, once high school is over, it is time to enter the real world!

Amy VanRamshorst (10) proudly accepts her awards at the banquet for the letterwinners.

Spirit of competition

LC, according to most area schools, has been a dominate force in the athletic field. Whenever any of the athletic teams entered on the court, field, track, ice, pool, or green, other schools became very intimidated, not because of the size of the school, but because of the top-ranked individuals competing against them. Being an athletic letterwinner was a honor for students, especially when they were able to flaunt their Letterman's jackets where ever they went.

in their work was the Spirit Team. Through mega-loads of cardboard and markers, students were able to glance throughout the hallways to see their spirit posters devoted to all the athletic teams. The Spirit Team also cheered the Girls' Basketball team to victory. Because of the energized half-time and time-out shows, the Spirit team along with the other members of the athletic letterwinners, got the school jumping by letting the competing schools know that yes, "We are Lake Central High School." by Heather

etting the scoop

"Hurry! Where are those pictures? Will there ever be a fog delay?" These are just some of the comments that were heard in the Publications room where LC students published: The Rune, Scout, and Quiver. There were some very stressful times for staff members especially around the most dreaded time of all--deadline.

Although the publications classes were stressful, the students had their fun too. They were allowed to express themselves through photos, creative copy, headlines, and page layouts.

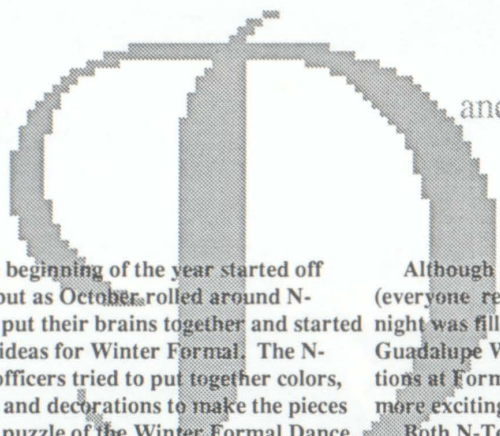

The Rune, a literary magazine, met after school for interested students. They voted on poems, art work, short stories, and photos submitted by students. The staff members had a hard time choosing the best work, but when the finished product came out they were all very pleased.

Scout, the school newspaper, was handed out to students every other Friday. The paper was printed by the LC print shop which gave students the responsibility to meet frequent deadlines.

The students who made up the yearbook staff put out Quiver. No matter how stressful deadlines were or how aggravated the staff got with each other, the book was a success. The publications department worked very hard to make sure that their work was the best it could be.

dancing throughout the year

The beginning of the year started off slow, but as October rolled around N-Teens put their brains together and started to get ideas for Winter Formal. The N-Teen officers tried to put together colors, songs, and decorations to make the pieces fit the puzzle of the Winter Formal Dance. Both N-Teens and SGA had to make everything fit so that everybody had a memorable time. Wendy Vukadonvich, 11, said, "The worst feeling is hearing something bad about a dance after working hard to make everything great."

Although there were a few difficulties, (everyone remember the wonderful D.J?) the night was filled with dancing and fun. Guadalupe Wozniak, 11, stated, "The decorations at Formal definitely made the dance more exciting."

Both N-Teens and SGA planned a trip to the Woodfield Mall before Christmas, and a Great America trip in the spring. The clubs needed to reward themselves for all their hard work in making the lives of students more exciting. Charlyn and Nick

Acting it out

What was one thing that Trebleaires received remarkably linked the Counterpoints, high scores at the ISSMA Trebleaires, and Thespians together this year? Disregarding the fact that they all sang and danced in front of hundreds of people, one would be left with a similarity that not all knew or even considered. Basically, over half of the Choral Performing Ensembles, Trebleaires and Counterpoints were members of the Lake Central Theatre Guild and were inducted into LC's Thespian Society.

Also, since the Counterpoints and Trebleaires performed so well at the contests, it is understandable that the LCTG's plays this year turned out to be two of the best ever. The fall drama/comedy, "The Madwoman of Chaillot" and the spring musical, "Into the Woods" both attracted many students and their families to come and see the talented, hard working, and dedicated performers of Lake Central High School.

All dedicated a lot of time to perfect their individual performance. Since tryouts for this year's Counterpoints and Trebleaires groups, and for the LCTG shows, members knew that they had gotten themselves into something special. Both the Counterpoints and

Tribe of pride

This past year has been a memorable one for the LC "Tribe of Pride." No one knew what to expect from the new band director, John Cook. Stacy Snyder, 10, centrallette, stated, "I didn't know what to expect for marching season. I just figured we'd be starting out new and build from there."

Contrary to all the doubts people had about how well they would do, they proved everyone wrong by advancing all the way to the marching state finals, held at the Hooiser Dome in Indianapolis. "We just surprised so many people. It was like we came out of nowhere and became one of the best bands in the state. It was great especially because this is only Mr. Cook's first year here," stated Mike Beatrice, 9.

Band continued to improve throughout concert season also. The Symphonic Band and Wind Ensemble both achieved superior ratings at ISSMA contests. Ryan Metherd, 11, said, "We hope to do even better next year in marching and concert band because we're only losing about five seniors this year."

Not everyone in band is overjoyed about the past year. An anonymous sophomore stated, "I've really put a lot into this band, but it doesn't seem as if many people appreciate it. I'm just tired of catering to other people's needs and taking so much flack from other people. But, I'm also happy for all the success we've had." by Sonja Antkowiak

Voices that carry

Wearing "Red leather, yellow leather," the LC Choir Department realized that "the skunk thunk, the skump stunk." Don't understand the message? Well, use your "Rubber baby buggy bumpers" and the "green glass, gas globes," and maybe the Mr. Michael T. Lewis would be able to "warm up."

A day in the life of Mr. Lewis-- think about it. After arriving to school, he entered into the choir room awaiting his first hour bell class to start. Clanking bells could have been somewhat annoying, but after continual practice, the Bell Choir tuned to create pure bliss. Second hour: Senior Treble + Jr. Treble a.m.=trouble? No, not at all. Third hour: Concert Choir. The best concert choir ever to sing under the direction of Mr. Lewis placing fifth at State level, was a moment, a great memory that everyone influenced by will remember. Fifth hour Varsity Choir sang and went straight into sixth hour: Junior Treble p.m. ending the school day and the year with a definite high note. by Heather

Professionals of the future

Choosing a career can be a very difficult thing and for some students almost impossible. For the students who did have some idea of what their career choices would be, LC offered different types of career clubs: Home-ec, Medical Professions Club (MPC), and Business Professionals of America (BPA). These clubs tried to help students narrow down their possible career choice than just the overall field. These clubs tried to give the students enough direction to pursue a possible career in college or just in further training.

Medical Professions Club, like every year, sponsored a blood drive. They had great success. MPC offered students information so that they could see the many different medical jobs available.

Home-ec was a club that gave students a chance to make good friends and to meet people who had like interests.

Business Professionals of America tried to prepare their members for the very competitive business world. BPA tried to push its members to see if they would be able to deal with the hectic lifestyle of a business person. Many of the members were able to participate in local and state competitions. Only the most qualified were able to go onto Texas where this year's national competitions were held. by Amy Basinski

Career Center
 oJnh yGa

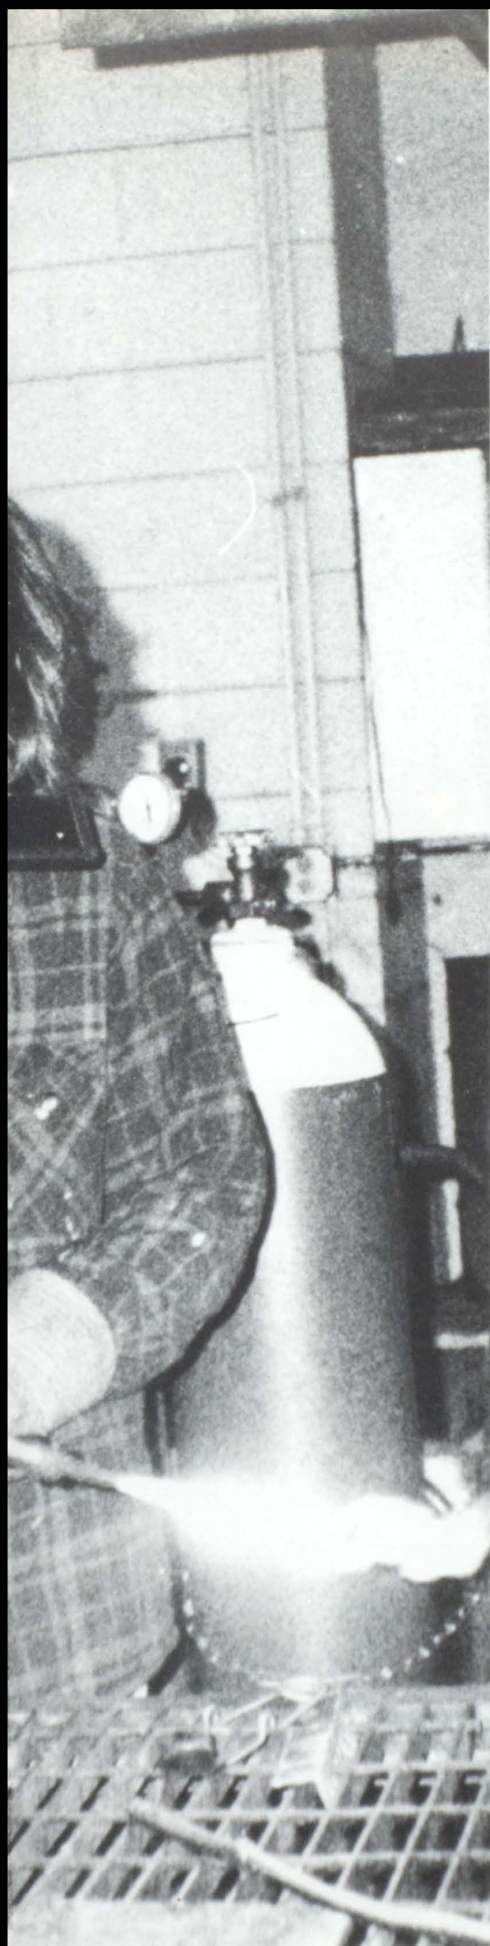

Many people have had a "home away from home," but just how many can say that they have had a school away from school?" The LC students who attended the Hammond Area Career Center can say just that. While their fellow students were attending first through third hours at LC, each guy and girl was going through intensive training for future vocational and technical careers. The Center includes Health Occupations, where students learned anatomy and medical terms; Administrative Support Services, where students learned about the business industry; Bake Shop, which replicated the environment of a modern bakery; Auto Service, which dealt with specialization of auto parts; Welding and Cutting; Cosmetology; Printing class; Drafting Program; Child Care; Electricity and Building Trades. These programs gave the Career Center students on-job training, and most gave enough experience for a degree. It was just like the real working world.

This program reflected the work of the world. Most LC students had never heard of the Career Center. Most did not even realize that their fellow students were going through training for the real world and, at the same time, going to LC for three hours a day. It is a difficult job to do, but it was just what these students preferred.

Industry

nHream leMwle

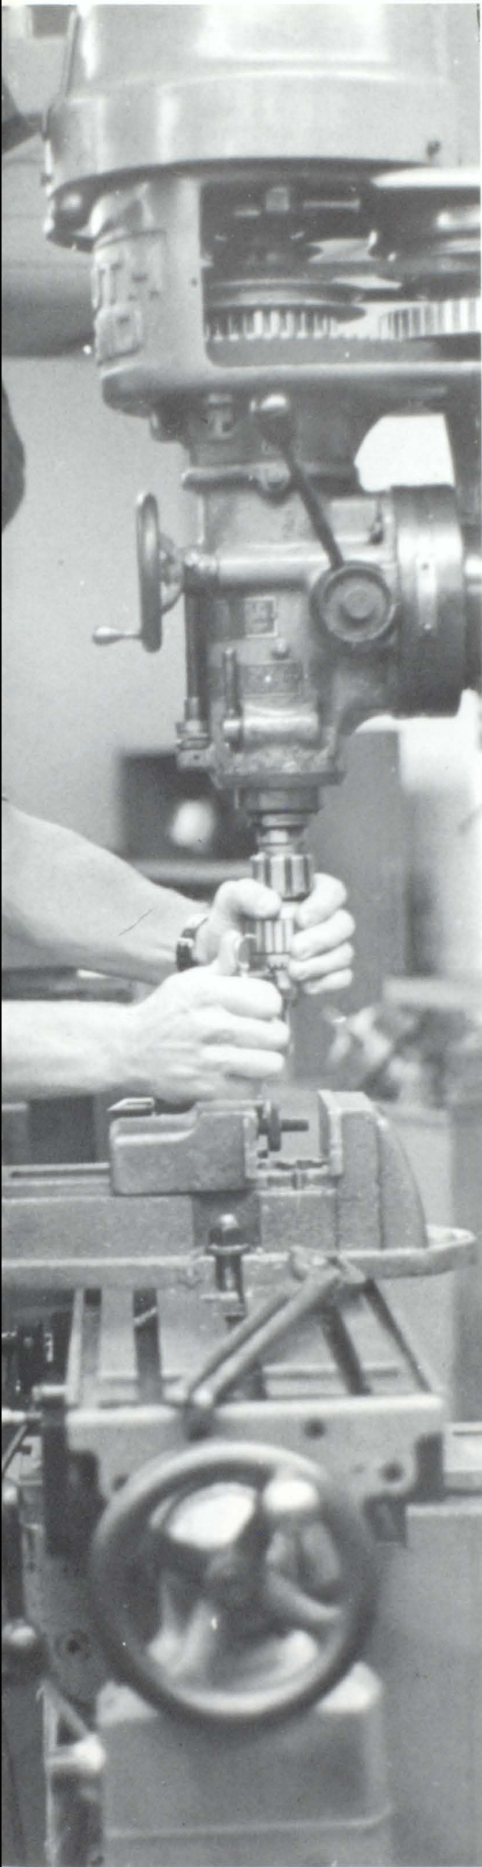

While some students end high school with at least another four years of college to go, industrial arts students graduate with the skills and knowledge that will help them get a good job almost immediately. And even if the industrial arts student decides to go another four or more years of college, he has the ability to become employed while studying.

Industrial arts students are a great help to LC. "When something breaks in the cafeteria or in one of the presses, we fix it. Sometimes a broken machine part costs $100 to replace, instead we make a new one in class and save money," stated Terry Magaha, 12, machine shop student.

As for wood shop, many students take it because they enjoy working with wood rather than making it their career. "I knew how to work with wood before I had the class. I took the class so I could work with the machines I don't have. We've built a lot of things for the theatre," Doug Klamo, 12, of wood shop mentioned.

The print shop is also a very important part of the LC curriculum. "You can make good money with a printing career. The printing industry is the third largest in the United States. We get a great chance at being creative," said Brian Wilking, 12, print shop student.

The bell had just rung. Students could be seen rushing to their assigned row... Have you figured out what class is being discussed yet? Well, here are some more clues. The participating students are forced to wear polyester shorts and a lovely shirt. What do these students exactly learn in this class? Well, they learn about volleys, building biceps, dribbling, freestyle swimming, and the back-dive. And one more thing, this class is required for graduation.

I think we all know what we're talking about by now. It's physical education, otherwise known as gym class. Yes, it's every freshman's nightmare. How could such a thing be expected from in coming freshman? Melissa Jenkins (9) stated, "It was sweaty, smelly, and dusty, but the running was fun."

Swimming class was loathed by many students, especially by those who had the class first hour. How awful to have to jump into a cold pool of water at 7:30 in the morning. But one must put aside all that and remember the fun which this class provided. In what other class could you try to flip your friends out of huge inner-tubes while playing a game of "war" or play a friendly game of water polo and get to wear a swimming cap. Walking into the Lake Central art rooms, one would find many high school students overflowing with creativity. This is proven by some of the outstanding artwork everyone has seen in the displays in the hallways. Something that everyone has not seen is what goes on while the projects are being done. These students not only learn how to create works of art during class; they also learn how to have fun. Alex Jovanovich,12, commented, "After three or four years of being in a class with people you've grown very close to and familiar with, you begin to become a family (at the risk of sound ing sappy) and you learn to put up with clashing personalities and colliding egos". Upon opening the art cabinet where the students' totetrays are, one would see a just a slice of the artists' creativity and fun. The artists make posters, poems, and pictures to decorate the cabinet. Just about every artist puts a little of themselves on their totetray. There are also many objects hanging that hold a special meaning between the students. Since the beginning of the year, the collection has grown significantly.

If it weren't for science, life for humans would be much different for us today. Because science is so important today, LC students take it upon themselves to study and understand it. Such classes as biology (advanced and environmental), chemistry, physics, and physical science are all available to LC students. Garret Crowe(11) commented on how important science is in today's world: "In a time at which technology is a demanding part of the workplace with computers being needed more and more on the job sight for manufacturing as well as business, it is important that future generations grow up with the knowledge of computers and their applications in society. Greater knowledge of computers will improve technology and help America stay ahead of other countries in lasers, satellites, and other important technologies. With the medical advances being taken in great strides, advanced biology and anatomy, as well as the complicated scientific procedures used in surgery, science is a vital part of a student's education."

ulPa tgeBuro

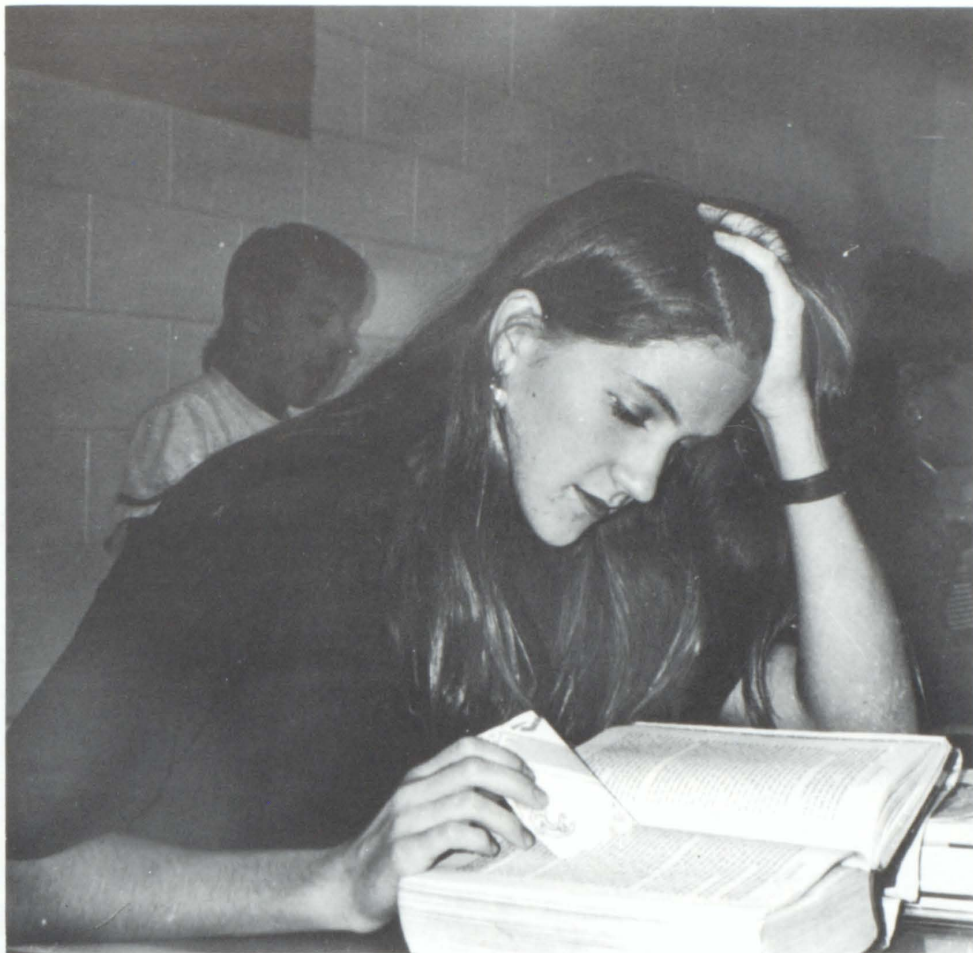

If you were to ask a student right now about their favorite thing about English, you might get a response like, "Sleeping through the boring movies based on novels we were forced to read," or "ostracizing substitute teachers while they're looking all over for the assignments the teacher left us before giving us an assignment from some other class." Although it might not be one of the most exciting classes, every student is required to have four years of English in order to graduate. Every year students read at least one novel, do at least one term paper and take three dozen vocabulary tests. Added to that are the dreaded timed writings that are given every other week. A timed writing requires at the most one hour and about five average paragraphs, usually on some topic chosen to be of most disinterest. During the literature portion of the semester, students read many stories and poems written by dead authors who purposefully wrote complex confusing novels just to confuse future students. Some students actually enjoy these older poems. But despite their many gripes, students realize that English is important and will help them in the future.

As you walk through V hall, passing up the scents of cookies baking in the oven, you begin to wonder what really goes on in foods class. From nutrition to setting a table correctly, to making a pot roast or putting the icing on the cake; each is an important part of cooking class. The most looked forward part of this class was eating your prepared meal. Even though this class sounds as good as the food, think again. It's a lot of hard work along with a few dishpan hands.

Not to far down this hall, students heard the hum of many sewing machines. Students learned not only how to sew on buttons, but how to design and construct their own clothing. "I thought this class would be really easy, but it's more like a challenge and the more difficult it got, the more I strived to be more creative and turn in the finished product." said Julie Soga,11. Next down the line is home nursing and management. Home nursing consits of in depth first aid. Then students learned the right way to take care of sick family members.

In the first nine weeks of home management, students learned about different color schemes for furniture. As the students worked through that, they had the opportunity to design their own apartment. The second nine weeks allowed for students to get to know themselves in hopes of being able to find the perfect mate. After the perfect mate was found, then the time for planning ones wedding day was in order. Though many guys did not sign up for this class, the ones who did could be defined as brave.

How many tunes can you play on your telephone? There's one aspect of math that few people think of. If you didn't know your numbers you wouldn't know exactly what buttons to press, and you'd be seriously confused when trying to order from the home shopping club. If you had a job they could jip you and pay you less than you think your getting. . .you wouldn't know, because you wouldn't know your numbers.

 porehCrtisi roMeyl

LC's Foreign Language Department offers a course of study in three fields: French, German, and Spanish. Any particular field may be pursued from one to four years. During these years come much memorization and concentration. During the first year the basic structure of the language is taught. This included much vocabulary, verbs, greeting, expressions, numbers and a various amount of culture topics.

Culture in Germany is very much different when it comes to gathering with the family. Dinner time here is considered family time, but in Germany lunch time is the time to gather with the family instead.

If one continues after first year, the second year is assumed to be more difficult. During this year, different tenses are learned (past, imperfect, future), more culture and little more of everything to excel to a much harder grammar point.

The French classes took a field trip to Portage High School to see the play "Les Trois Mousquetaires" (The Three Musketeers). "The play was OK, but I did not get a word out of it," said Lisa O'Hara, 9.

"Pronunciation is very hard to learn because nothing sounds the way it looks, but no matter what is said in French, it sounds beautiful," said Ms. Lowe.

The German class runs like the other two languages except for the fact everything is in German of course. "The hardest thing for me is to get English out of my head and only think of German," commented Scott Berger, 9.

Over fall break, five students and one teacher visited Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Michelle Bodie, Jen Arcella, Brian Binole, Ryan White, and Ryan Guillen, from Mr. Clark's honors U.S history class, pitched in the $100 for each student, and they also paid for their own food and souvenirs. This trip took about 12 hours of driving, which Mr. Clark did. They had four days to have good times and learning experiences in Pennsylvania. They left right after school Wednesday, Oct. 21, and came back Sunday.

Careful scheduling during the drive helped make the most of their time. They toured museums and bookstores within the city of Gettysburg and toured the battlefield that is on the outer edge of the city. They also visited Virginia, West Virginia and Washington D.C. Some interesting things happened to the students and even Mr. Clark who locked his keys in the van. The other five watched the sunset and waited to take pictures of deer as they came by. They also played much Trivial Pursuit and got to know each other well. They had a good time learning more about history and each other. Some of them found out that their new friends made good arguments over different topics. They spent hours arguing about animal rights, civil rights, and discrimination. But they did laugh and have a good time with jokes and each other's actions.

This trip was very beneficial, not only for learning experiences, but to have a good time. The scenery was perfect. Ryan Guillen, 12, said, "It was just pure enjoyment of the vast countryside and rolling hills."

Michelle Bodie, 11, said, "The trip was definitely worth it. It was nothing but fun."

If your future is in acting, then drama will definitely be the class to take. Remembering lines, performing in front of large crowds, and expressing yourself are some of abilities you will acquire. "It boosts your self-confidence and makes you feel comfortable being in front of people," stated Amy Dohl, 12. Of course what fun would drama be if you haven't experienced speech class yet.

Speech would be a class to take, not just for the future but for yourself. "I feel speech prepares you for the future because it calms me in front of groups, and gives me hints in how to appeal to different audience," said Kathy Barker, 10.

This year the band has been exploding with lots of new talent. Sitting in class room everyday tuning their instruments and learning new pieces of music is not just all they do. They are the ones that put in many hours of practicing for routines just to entertain us, the crowds!

The most important aspect to consider when trying to qualify for state is the sight reading. Mr. Lewis has been heavily emphasizing practicing sight reading with Senior Treble and concert choir, and that is the reason that concert choir made it to state and got fifth. # Do you want to play a game of Questions?

How to play: 1. The game must start out with the question: "Does anyone want to play a game of Questions?"

2. Everything said after that must be in a form of a question. For example:

Ted asks, "Does anyone want to play a game of questions?"

Rita answers with another question: "Do you want to play a game of Questions, Ted?"

Tom listened in and wonders, "Why didn't you ask me if I wanted to play a game of Questions, Rita?"

Rita replies, "Are you telling me you want to play, Tom?"

Does everyone understand how to play now? Good, so now we can go into explaining how to determine the winner and how to keep score.

Keeping Score: The scoring of Questions is similar to tennis. Each person "volleys" with everyone else who is playing. Each game is played with a different person at the same time, so anyone and everyone can ask you questions at the same time to make you "break your serve" of questions. This may sound confusing, but actually the scoring and playing of the game is very easy. Each person is allowed 3 points (or mess ups) before he is disqualified. How a person can "add up his points" is by answering a question in a statement. (Major no-no because the whole game of Questions is to answer each question in a question.) Whenever a person does answer in a statement another game participant must yell out "STATEMENT" in order for the person to receive points against him.

The second and final way that a person can stack up negative points is by repeating the same question asked one after the other. If this should happen, someone must yell out "REPITITION" in order for the person to receive points.

Now after you know the rules and how to keep score let's spy on Rita, Tom, and Ted's game of Questions to see how they are doing.

Rita: "Where do you want to go?"

Tom: "Are you asking me?"

Ted: "She was asking me."

Rita: "STATEMENT!! 1-Love between Ted and me!"

Ted: "Are you saying I don't know how to play, Rita?"

Tom: "Do we care?"

Ted: "What did you say, Tom?"

Tom: "Do we care?"

Ted: "REPITITION!! 1-Love between Tom and me."

So see, Questions is a lot of fun! Did I say that right?

Staying in good physical shape and using proper health care are two important aspects of a strong performance. But most importantly, an athlete must abstain from getting injured. The boys' basketball team experienced a great loss due to injuries. As sectionals were approaching, when it is most important for the team to be in its best possible shape, three team members were on the bench and unable to participate. They consisted of Tim Klein (12) with a knee injury, Greg Kulig (11) with a knee injury, and Joe Stavitzke (10) with a deep thigh bruise. This resulted in an early loss

Unfortunately, Torres lost to competition at State. He didn't go alone though. The Swim Team spends many long hours training before and after school. A day for a swimmer is something like this, they're at the pool at 5:30 a.m. and of school, they jump back into the water for a two and a half hour practice. This is not all. While students are all out having fun on their Christmas break, swimmers are at school attending three practices a day! Because of all this dedication, the swimmers can only find one way to relieve their tension and that is by goofing off! Swimmers try to make the best of their practices by either freezing their suits in between practices or just having fun! Swimming takes up a lot of time, yet they still find time to do their homework and hang out with their friends.

Experience is important, but it is not always the most important factor to a winning season in any sport. The soccer team was full of underclass talent. Varsity consisted of three seniors and a whole crew of freshmen and sophomores. Junior Varsity consisted of freshmen, sophomores and a few juniors. This underclass talent turns into experience over the years. Benji Walters (11) commented, "We were a young team but we had a lot of experience playing together. As the season went on, we put our talent together and we went farther than anyone had expected us to go." The team ended up finishing second in conference with high hopes of making it out of sectionals to advance in state competition. By Jodie

Also, there were only five seniors on the team. This meant that it was a rebuilding season and players would only get better.

The team did have a few girls' come up from JV to Varsity. Courtney Canale and Laurie Beck were both sophomores who were advanced to Varsity #2 doubles. These girls' really showed improvement and started winning the majority of their matches towards the end of the season.

Cheerleading is the longest lasting season during the school year. Basically, the squad is practicing and working together all year round. After try-outs which usually take place in May, the girls spend the summer at camps and competitions. They cheer through the fall and winter sports and then prepare for important competitions after the actual cheering season ends. Most cheerleaders start their career in middle school and continue throughout their high school years. For the seniors, many of them end their career as a cheerleader and go on to college to start off in new directions. Carli Stephan (12) commented, "My last game cheering was really upsetting. I felt like I lost a big part of my middle school and high school years." By Jodie

H HOGAN

Lisa Waite (11) expresses her excitement while the squad anxiously awaits their scores from the competition.

Tanya Norris (12) screams in laughter while cheering on the football team.

CHEERLEADING

"How well could we have done at nationals?"

Tanya Norris (12)

Carli Stephan was the team captain.

Cheerleading is now considered a sport at Lake Central.

"The most fun was tee peeing the football players' houses."
Monica Apostol (12)

The squad had an opportunity to compete in a national cheerleading competition in Los Angeles.

"We got to change things we thought would be more fun for school."
Tanya Norris (12)

The squad qualified for nationals in California.

Mandy Ladd was the team mascot.

Larry Ramsey

May 5, 1975 - Aug 23, 1992

Larry, 17 years old, is sadly missed by his friends and teachers. He was enrolled in the required classes at LC as a junior. He is remembered as "having a great sense of humor and would stick up for his friends."

Larry, we miss you, and rest in peace.

Can you figure out what scenes go with the movie/t.v. shows?

The following are fictional and non-fictional scenes from favorite movies and television shows. The game might be hard, but don't worry, you can handle it! Good luck!!

1.) After shopping on Rodeo Drive, Kelly, Brenda, and Donna become hungry. Donna calls her boyfriend David, and tells him to call Steve to meet them at the Peach Pit. Not knowing that Dillon is already there, Kelly and Brenda start fighting. Brandon breaks it up, and Andrea leaves with Dillon.

- a) 21 Jumpstreet
- b) The Heights
- c) Beverly Hills 90210

2.) Princess Jasmine is looking for the perfect love, while _____ is looking for his love of a lifetime too. Princess Jasmine's ideal mate would have to have a lot of the same qualities as her pet tiger, Raja.

- a) Beauty and the Beast
- b) Alladin
- c) The Crying Game

3.) Jill and Tim have to replace their toilet. After cutting off the water, they have no idea what to do next. Tim tries and tries to fix everything, but nothing seems to work. Jill ends up calling Tim's companion, Al, and by the next day Jill and Tim have a working facility.

- a) Home Improvement
- b) Murder She Wrote
- c) Full House

4.) Caroline works at a diner. Adam works there too. Caroline thinks Adam is not very appealing. Adam turns her heart around. They like each other a lot, but the movie does not end in a happy ending.

- a) Far and Away
- b) Untamed Heart
- c) Scent of a Woman

5.) These two characters spend the day at the mall trying out their favorite kitty litter, Gritty Kitty. There they meet Mr. Horse and "no, he didn't like it." Muddy Mudskipper is playing on the TV set in the electronics department.

- a) Tom and Jerry
- b) Beavis and Butthead
- c) Ren and Stimpy

Answers: 1.) c; 2.) b; 3.) a; 4.) b; 5.) c

Once sophomores finally realize that their freshman year had ended, they decide to just stand around and wait to become juniors.

Jason Burgess, are you really doing your homework or just pretending?

Do you have the traits of a freshman?

Being a Senior, Junior, or Sophomore can be exciting, but there is something about being a Freshman that, let's just say, makes shivers go up your spine. Have you ever wondered if you were really a Freshman or was it just a bad nightmare? Even if it was or was not, it is a thought that preoccupied everyone's mind at one time or another. Do you want to see if you belong in the 9th grade? Take this puzzling questionnaire and you'll find out if you qualified to be a frosh or not this year.

Did you look forward to coming to school in the morning so you could block the hallway and talk with all of your friends?

What thought went through your mind the first day of school?

- a) "Gee whiz! LC is sure bigger than Grimmer/Kahler!"
- b) "It's my last year. Yes!!"
- c) "I'm glad I'm not a frosh!"

Did you try to sleep in first hour because you didn't want to jump in the pool at 7:30 a.m.?

What kind of vehicle did you take to school? Why did you ride in that automobile?

- a) "The cheesewagon because it's fun. All my friends ride it!!"
- b) "My parents take me. I can't stand listening to the kiddies on my bus!"
- c) "I drive my own car. Please, give me some credit!"

Did you have a phobia of waking in the wrong classroom, especially one with a bunch of seniors?

What was your favorite social scene or school function this year?

- a) "The Freshman Mixer."
- b) "Senior Banquet."
- c) "Prom."

Did you try to avoid going to your locker as much as possible so people couldn't identify you as a Frosh?

How many times did you have to look at the high school map of hallways and classrooms this year?

- a) "Hundreds! I totally could not get in the swing of things the first month!"
- b) "None!!"
- c) "You mean we got a map! No one gave me a map, not like I needed it or anything."

Did you rush to all your classrooms because you never wanted to be late?

What was your favorite in-school activity?

- a) "Badmitton and water polo."
- b) "Disecting a cat."
- c) "Studying World War II."

Well there you have it! If you answered "yes" or "a" to all of these questions you were definitely a freshman at heart. You had all of the frosh qualities and symptoms that made them so unique. (Which don't get me wrong, we've all had them, so don't feel stupid.) If you answered no to most of these questions you mentally never graduated grade school or at least didn't participate in the usual "life as a freshman."

Ryan Heeman stands tall showing that freshmen do dominate, even if they do have to stand on top of a truck for others to think so.

If you chose mostly "A's", you are probably with the swing of things by now.

You are honest, caring, open-minded, trust worthy and not quick to assume things by the way they look. You probably can officially call yourself a high school student.

If you chose mostly "B's", you are most likely the overprotective, somewhat immature type.

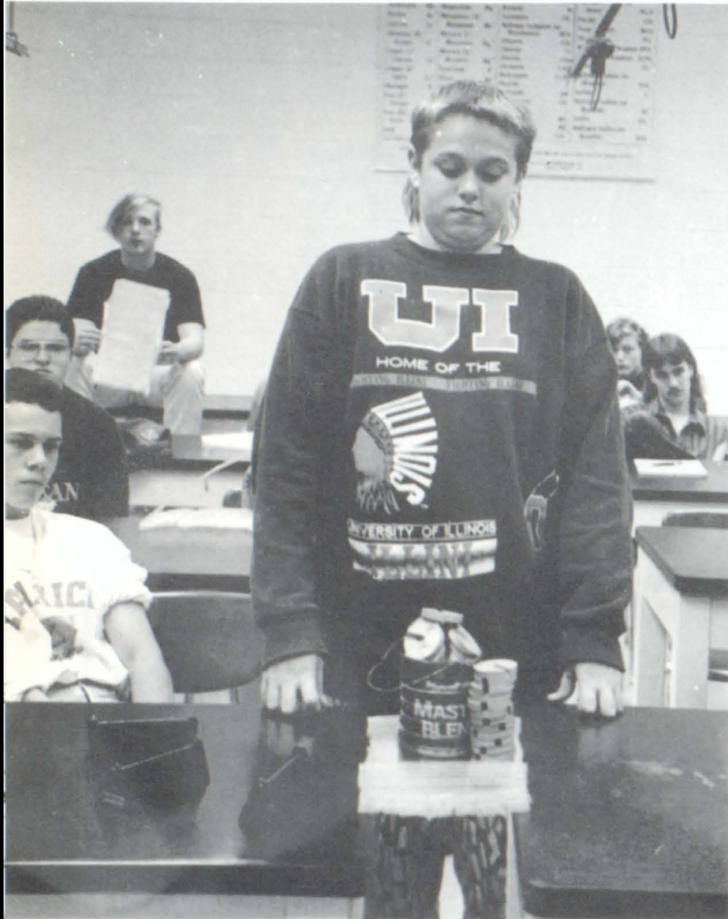

You still are not used to high school but you're getting there. Just loosen up a bit and do not try too hard to fit in.

If you chose mostly "C's", well, this is not middle school anymore.

You probably do not like high school, and you most likely visit your middle school often. Lose the immaturity and think things through before you make decisions.

Games are everywhere these days for students. At home when there is nothing to do, many students like to keep busy by playing some type of game. Some types of games students regularly play to keep from being bored are video games, board games, and sport games. "I play Nintendo on weekends because I get bored and there is nothing to do," commented Eric Smith, 9. Jessica Allwert, 11, agrees that game playing comes from boredom. "I play my favorite board game, Aggravation, when I'm bored."

Probably one of the most popular games are sport games. Practically everyone has participated in some type of sport game in their lifetime. Highschool students can almost always be found playing at the local basketball courts and baseball fields.

Teachers have caught on to the students' cry for a little bit of excitement and now give puzzles and games for homework. This homework is usually something like crosswords, word circles, dot to dots, or anything else entertaining. Teachers hope this will liven up the school day. "I play these games and others like Trivial Pursuit, but for fun and not to learn," said Amy Langland, 10. Games are not only for fun, but can be a learning experience also.

Quiver's year started out on a shaky note. I was a bit worried about the staff considering nobody was too happy about selling ads(especially Jen Griffin). Hew had to set a contest involving money in order to get the staff motivated. Charlyn, Nick, Mike, and Andrea must have written out a million receipts before the year was out. Anyway, the color deadline totally stressed out Heather and I forcing us to either sing or dance in order to make ourselves feel better. The Senior Section was another of my worries, but thanks to Amy Bas. and Anna, the section turned out great. Sports constantly worried me with missing team pictures and crashing disks, but Jenn, Noreen, and Jodie pulled through and finished the section. Let's see, oh yes, academics. G.I Joe(AKA Joe Plata) along with Michelle B, Michelle W, Lynn, and Ranae made this usually dull section something to look at. Even the Clubs section which basically everybody worked on turned out to be quite a section.

Of course there were the usual arguments with the photographers. At times I wanted to kick every photographer off staff ,but at times, they really pulled through for the entire staff. I loved when Nick would hand me pictures which I didn't even ask him to take, or when Jen Rash showed me her proof sheets, or when Michelle B. printed pictures for me, or when Holly(Isn't she so pretty?) would ask me if I need anything shot. But my special thanks go out to Jimmy Bishop who shot when no one else would, who printed when no one else would.(Smile Jimmy)

Jason Turner(AKA The Ad Man) designed ads until he turned blue, but always turned in perfect pages. I could never forget Rachel for all her computer wisdom. And yes, Quiver had an aide, Adam Pieters who ran around at everybody's beck and call. And before I forget, a special thanks to Steven Woz. for all his wonderful pictures. Well, now that the book is finally done, and my frustration has passed, I just want to express my thanks to my staff. I really loved working with you all. O.K enough of this before I get all emotional. Lovingly,Angie

The # Staff

Throughout the year, everyone from the editors to the aides helped to make this year's book extraordinary.

Probably the first thing that I can remember about the staff is the dreaded ads. Michelle Bodie won the contest, but that's no surprise since our devoted artist won numerous awards during the year. (Congratulations! I know you'll go far!) After the ads were sold and all the computer questions were answered by Rachel, everyone worked on the underclassmen and senior sections. I really don't know how we would have made it without Anna, (We've missed you Anna, and Andrea and Robyn too!)

Ever since the first semester ended, though, we all started getting pretty serious, about our deadlines. (Maybe too serious at times for our own good.) Oh well, we all made it. (Even though I had doubts about Jen Griffin because she ate salmonella chicken after school! By the way, thanks Justan, for supplying it!)

I just want the Quiver staff to know, especially Mrs. Hewlett, that you all made my year very special. Seriously, it was wonderful seeing a staff of only 23 members unite together and produce a 280 page book of not just pictures and copy, but of everyone's high school highlights. Just remember: We all are a piece of a puzzle and when we are connected together, we make a beautiful and complete picture.

Thanks everyone, Heather Ho

PS: When you guys get the book, Angie and Amy B, call me at McNut and we'll have lunch and disco sing-a-longs! We will survive! You can come too Jim!

Was your ornament on the Unity Tree? All organizations were invited to participate in the annual decorating of the Unity Tree, which stood in the main office. Of course, decorating the tree meant that the ornament representing the group would be handmade.

Although considerably smaller than trees of past years, the Unity Tree still proved the spirit of the season with nearly all clubs and groups participating. The lucky ornament artists spent time in managing the most clever ornament that could bounce out of their imaginations. In some cases, classes participated. As the deadline approached, all anxiously watched to see if the Unity Tree would have bare spots, but, no, the clever ornaments more than filled the green spaces.

Each group attempted to produce something that would detail the meaning of their school work, for instance, Scout offered paper doll garland, made, of course, from recent issues of the Scout.

Peer Helpers grasped the responsibility of placing the ornaments on the tree, which was completed in plenty of time to celebrate the season. Like the pieces of a puzzle, the Unity Tree tradition once again came together to signify a very special puzzle, LC united in the spirit of the holiday season.
